

EAST WIND

Politics and Culture of Asians in the U.S.

東風

EAST WIND — Politics and Culture of Asians in the U.S. is a new national Asian American magazine being published for and by Asians. In these days of increasing right wing reaction and racism, Asian people must unite and stand up for our rights, for justice and equality. EAST WIND magazine dedicates itself to popularizing and promoting the many movements of Asian people in the U.S., educating people about important issues in the communities, on campus, and at the workplace, and helping to develop the art and culture of Asians in America.

Not only will EAST WIND reflect the experiences and struggles of Asians in the U.S., it will be a part of it. Many of our staff and contributors have been active in the Asian Movement for over a decade as organizers, workers, writers, teachers, and artists.

Join with us in building EAST WIND magazine. Support the Asian peoples' movement for pride, equality and political power.

Published semi-annually by Getting Together Publications, EAST WIND's premier issue will be available in May 1982. The 64 page magazine promises to be exciting and informative. Some of the articles include:

- "The 100th Anniversary of the Chinese Exclusion Act — A Time to Reclaim Our History," by Gordon Chang
 - "A Sansei Perspective on the Concentration Camps" — a commentary by Evelyn Yoshimura
 - "Asian American Women: Past, Present and Future" by Yuri Kochiyama
 - "Aloha 'Aina" — a history of the Hawaiian struggle for land and power by Tracy Takano
 - A special FOCUS section on the Asian Movement — its history, current work and future directions featuring commentaries by May Chen, Philip Vera Cruz, Gin Fu, Lori Leong, Lillian Nakano, Alan Nishio and Wes Senzaki.
 - A special section devoted to art, poetry, photography and short stories featuring: "Bewildered" — a short story by Louis Chu
- Interviews with Actor/Directors Mako and Tisa Chang
