NAGASAKI APPEAL

For an International Agreement for the Complete Prohibition of Nuclear Weapons

Twenty-eight years have passed since atomic bombs were dropped on Hiroshima and Nagasaki. However, nuclear weapons have not yet been banned, despite the ardent wishes and joint efforts of the Japanese people, who suffered from the bombs, and other peace-loving people, all of whom are calling for "No More Hiroshimas or Nagasakis!" and for the complete prohibition of A and H Bombs. The development of nuclear weapons and the nuclear armaments race, with the consequent environmental disruption, are being pushed on an evergrowing scale and have reached a most dangerous stage.

Having used nuclear arms for the first time on Hiroshima and Nagasaki, still tormenting many atomic victims, the United States has consistently resisted the complete prohibition of nuclear weapons, and is the leader of the nuclear weapons development and nuclear armaments race.

As the most effective guarantee to end nuclear weapons development and the nuclear armaments race and to eradicate the danger of nuclear war, an international agreement to completely prohibit the use, testing, manufacture and stockpiling of nuclear weapons must now be concluded.

Such an agreement could now be achieved without delay if all nuclear powers strove for it in response to the demands of the peoples of the world.

Even after the tragedy of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, the United States repeatedly attempted to use nuclear weapons, first in Korea and then in Vietnam, but the world-wide movement for the prevention of nuclear war and the complete prohibition of nuclear weapons kept the U.S. finger from pulling the trigger.

If the peoples of the world build up an ever more powerful movement in unity and expanded solidarity and raise the level of world public opinion, they will surely succeed in getting an international agreement signed for the complete prohibition of nuclear weapons and for the sweeping away of all nuclear weapons from the earth.

In the hope that this city of Nagasaki will prove to be the last place where a nuclear weapon was used, we call on all the peoples and governments of the world to do their utmost to conclude an international agreement for the complete prohibition of nuclear weapons.

Nagasaki, August 10, 1973

19th World Conference against A and H Bombs

We, the undersigned, fully support the Nagasaki Appeal and demand that all governments, including the five nuclear powers (U.S.A., U.S.S.R., United Kingdom, France and People's Republic of China) make every effort to achieve the early conclusion of an international agreement completely prohibiting nuclear weapons, thus putting an immediate end to the nuclear arms race.
